From Virginia.

Action of Court of Appeals.

RICHMOND, Oct. 12.

The Court of Appeals of Virginia, composed of Judges appointed by Gen. Canby, met today and adjourned until the January term.

After spreading on the minutes an order, setting forth that the adjournment is in view of the rapid progress of reconstruction, and that in a brief period judicial and other officers may be elected to fill places now held by authority temporarily conferred by acts of Congress, the Judge adds: Many believe that the ultimate decision of Congress may be heard in the interval between this and the next appointed term of this Court, and it is deemed expedient and proper not to proceed to the transaction of further business at this time. The reasons leading to this conclusion it is not deemed necessary further to relate.

FROM WASHINGTON.

WASHINGTON Oct. 12.

The general committee of One Hundred held a meeting last night and adopted the draft of a charter to be presented to Congress for an amendment incorporating the International Exposition Association with a capital of $1,000,000.

From San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 12.

The cashier of the First National Bank of Nevada has fatally examined the books at Austin without giving a solution of the troubles there.

Notice is given that drafts on the San Francisco branch will be paid by the London and San Francisco bank.

Two hundred recruits for the 1st and 6th regular cavalry, passed Elko coming west today.

From Tennessee. Synopsis of Governor Senter's Message.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. Oct. 12.

Special to New York Times:

The Governor's message has been read to the Legislature. The Press and Herald's synopsis of the message shows that he urges strongly the ratification of the fifteenth Amendment to the Constitution. He says as the interest of Tennessee would be further endangered by, and that the people voted for it; urges a continuation of the full school system and comments upon its good effects; speaks of repudiation and advises the sale of delinquent railroads, to enhance the value of the State bonds and refers favorably to action to encourage emigration. Bills had been introduced into the Legislature to disqualify negroes as jurors, and to repeal the school law and abolish county superintendents of education.

The Senatorial contest is fierce. Johnson's friends are confident. If he wins a third man will be chosen. Nelson is now named.

Whig & Courier.

JOHN H. LYNDE, - - PROPRIETOR.

THURSDAY, OCT. 14, 1869.

The results of the honest and economical administration of the Government by the Republican party, says the St. Paul Press, are beginning to tell powerfully in the largely increased receipts, even from largely reduced taxes, in the greatly decreased expenditures, and in the vast reduction of the public debt. These results prove beyond a doubt the reality of all the corruptions, and peculations, and robberies of the people, which were charged upon the Democratic administration of Andrew Johnson. They prove that at least fifty million dollars a year were lost to the Government by these unwholesome causes. That is the inevitable result of Democratic ascendency, whenever and wherever it is found. Every Democratic city government in the country, every Democratic county or State government is notoriously a nest of thieves and robbers. The Republican party is by no means perfect or exempt from human frailties; but experience has proved that there is no other party existing in this country which can be safely entrusted with the direction of public affairs. And the reason for this is, not that the Republican officials are always free from dishonesty, but because they represent an intelligent and watchful constituency who won't tolerate stealing, while Democratic officials, though sometimes men of good private character, represent constituences so ignorant and so easily duped by their leaders, that they can steal with perfect impunity so far as the Democratic party is concerned.

The Boston Journal says some of our Democratic papers are sadly troubled because Mr. Boutwell made a speech in Philadelphia Saturday night. It does not please them at all to learn from official authority that he has paid off fifty or sixty millions of the public debt since their friend, Andrew Johnson, went out of office; that taxation has been reduced and that he proposes to recommend that it be reduced more, so as to lighten the burdens upon the industry of the country, and that of the administration so sustained, we can fund our debt at four and a half per cent. That isn't the kind of talk our Democratic neighbors like to hear—or at any rate they don't like to hear it from Mr. Boutwell. But the people do—and we imagine they will accept his report as "in part" and grant him "further time."

The New York Times says several negotiations have already been attempted between the governments of the United States and Great Britain with the object of still further reducing the rate of ocean postage. We cannot say that these efforts entirely failed, for as our readers are aware, a twelve-cent stamp now carries a letter across the Atlantic, whereas twenty-four cents were necessary prior to Jan., 1868. Every reduction of this kind has the effect of immensely increasing the correspondence which passes through the office, and consequently actually increases the total revenue. Postmaster-General Creswell now proposes to lower the rate from twelve to six cents, and many members of the British Parliament would go still further in the right direction, and establish a system of penny postage (two cents.) This is the best of all the propositions, and according to our correspondent at Washington, Mr. Creswell is not unfavorable to it. It would be a great advantage to thousands of immigrants, whose means are scanty, if they could communicate with their friends at a small cost. The two cents postage movement alone worthy of the age, and we trust that ere long we shall have to record its complete success.

The New York Sun describes Mr. Corbin the President's brother-in-law: "Mr. Corbin is about fifty-five years old, very tall, somewhat slender, stoops slightly, has gray eyes and light brown hair. He is bold in his speculations, but weakens before great risks. He prefers to invest safely, but generally manages to buy property which rapidly rises in value. As his property rises in value, he mortgages it and invests the proceeds so as to make a higher rate of interest than 7 per cent. His five-story, high stoop, brown stone mansion on West Twenty-seventh street is a valuable piece of property. The furniture is Fayle made. Elegance, but sumptuousness, marks the interior of his house. His wealth is variously estimated by a relative at from $2,500,000 to $3,000,000."

GENERAL BUTLER ON GOVERNMENT FINANCE. The New York Herald says that General Butler, while in that city on Saturday, warmly defended both President Grant and Secretary Boutwell from all charges of complicity with the late gold panic. He says the slander is a sharp political move, set on foot by the Democracy in order to affect the approaching elections. He thinks Congress cannot pass any direct law that would prevent gambling in gold. The only way to effect this object would be to make greenbacks the standard of values and gold an article of merchandise, which could be done if Government would accept its own paper in partial payment of Custom House revenues.

Every month it appears more and more plainly that the Republican administration is honestly collecting the revenues according to law, and honestly applying the proceeds to the payment of the war debt. Nothing is frittered away, squandered or stolen by rings—all goes into the public treasury, and there the door is shut. Not even a trained Democratic corruptionist can handle a dollar unless he happens to be a creditor of the government—a contingency which seldom occurs. Why, shouldn't the Democracy scold?

Ex-Senator Doolittle had an interview with the President on Saturday relative to the proposed purchase of St. Thomas. Judge Doolittle had been retained by parties interested in the purchase of the island by the United States as counsel. From the nature of the President's conversation it is believed he is not favorable to the project, and he does not think St. Thomas would be a valuable acquisition.

In a speech made on the occasion of the opening of an art gallery in Washington last night, in response to a toast on the Cabinet, General Sherman referred to the proposed removal of the Capital, and said that while as a Western man he would like to see it at St. Louis, yet he never would be instrumental in removing a stone of the pile where Webster and Clay and Calhoun had made their fame.

More than three hundred of the most prominent merchants and business firms of Philadelphia have addressed a communication to the Congressional delegation from that city, urging their support of Mr. Jenckes' Civil Service bill or some similar measure.

Horace Greely, in a letter to an editor in Arkansas, contends that the long-continued rebel disfranchisement is impossible. There is, he says, a more excellent way, and the Republicans must ploneer it; nothing is safe if base magnanimity.

The Piscataquis Railroad.

A correspondent writing for your Friday morning's paper of last week upon railroad and railroad dams, says the present location of the Bangor and Piscataquis Railroad is bad; that it should have started from Bangor, passed up the Kenduskeag direct to Dover; that this route is through a rich farming country, and that the land on the present route will hardly support a grasshopper.

I have several times heard such remarks as these in the streets and places of business in Bangor. It is one thing to sent oneself in an office with a map of the State in hand and locate a railroad, and a very different one to explore a route and make an instrumental survey.

The B. & P. R. R. Company undertook to make a direct or air line from Winn to the coast line of the State. After spending nearly a year with a party of engineers and costing several thousand dollars, they found the route impracticable and gave it up and taking a more northerly route followed the valleys of the rivers.

In New England we can never build cheap roads with low grades and easy curves, consequently cheap working roads except we follow the valleys of the streams.

The writer above alluded to says if we had followed up the Kenduskeag and run to Dover we should have saved 13 miles. No doubt of it, but let us examine this matter a little.

If the road was made down the Kenduskeag to within one mile of the Penobscot it would cost more money to bring it to the water with convenient wharfage and depot accommodations than all the subscriptions of the city.

Now if you will go with me toward Dover you will find a high range of hills to contain commencing very far west of Dover and running east to Milo; there is a deep cut in the mountains between the Piscataquis river and the waters of the Dead, or as the hero the Maker of the hills and valleys has said, locate your railroad.

It will be remembered by those familiar with this section that Dead Stream empties into the Penobscot near Oldtown, and railroad is located in its valley.

Your correspondent says a road up the Kenduskeag to Dover would have run through good farming country and would bring more business to a road than the present location. I think he is right. The land is good and for the present would bring more business to the road than from Oldtown to Milo, but being located over a hilly country would have cost very much more per mile and in all coming time have cost more to run it. Suppose we start from the mouth of the Kenduskeag and run to Milo some four or five miles in length of road as proposed with the present location through Oldtown, but to reach good wharf accommodations in Bangor would require an additional half a million of dollars, and the money we have not got and cannot raise.

Let us look a moment at the present location. In the first place I do not think a road can be run to the Piscataquis river west of the present location on account of the range of mountains near that river, and in the next place I do not think the business in that county can be opened to the city of Bangor so well as to cross the river at Milo.

Besides the vicinity of Milo being as good for farming as any between Bangor and Dover, the Slate Quarries, capable of giving almost any amount of business, to road, lay but five miles from the line of road at this point to a northerly direction, about 14 miles further on, a very large amount of supplies are carried by lumbermen to the west branch of Penobscot by way of Katahdin Iron Works.

The land on the line of the road is generally good, and in the town of Lagrange following the turnpike there are more good farms with better buildings and more appearance of thrift than on any road through a farming town in this county.

The road from Oldtown to Dover running for the rolling stock will cost about $20,000 per mile, which is probably less than any road of that length in New England with less degrees of curve and less feet of grade and a lower maximum grade, which will make it a very cheap road to work.

The road, for the most part is located over land not liable to wash, and aside from the bridges will not be an expense to keep in repair.

The road when finished will do a fair, not to say a very large business. It will require a little time to make its business, as all other roads do—and then it will pay interest on its cost and a large dividend to the city by increase of business.

At a railroad meeting held a few days before taking the vote of the city on the loan bill, Mr Stetson spoke in this way—I do not say that I think there will be no risk—but I have given the subject considerable thought, and I believe it is one of the risks that it will do to take, and I think the city ought and must take it, and no doubt it is of the same opinion now.

C. J.

Grant is charged with favoring his friends for office, and his friends with robbing the public revenues and applying them to the reduction of the public burdens. And that's just what's the matter with critics. The more the debt is reduced the worse they are off for political capital.

The managers of the Georgia State Fair who recently invited the President and his Cabinet to attend their exhibition, and then excepted General Butler from the list, have since requested the Secretary of the Navy to put a war vessel at the service of the distinguished guests. The matter was talked over in the Cabinet, and in consideration of the slight to Gen. Butler all the members declined the invitation and the Secretary refused to furnish the vessel.

The Democratic papers, in default of anything else in Grant to find fault about, are now grumbling at the regularity with which he draws his salary.—Exchange.

As the revenues of the government have been increased millions by the honesty with which they are collected, and its expenses reduced a nearly corresponding amount by an insatiable disposition for retrenchment, the Treasury has thus far had no difficulty in paying Mr. Grant his modest stipend as soon as it became due.

MR. SEWARD'S PLATFORM. At Santa Barbara, Cal., Ex-Secretary Seward said his creed was this:

I would have no slavery in the United States. I would have this a free land for all nationalities on the face of the globe. To our shores I would welcome all men who love liberty and would enjoy the immunities of a free land. Here should they live in peace, protection and plenty. And I would have no rebellion in the land if I could prevent it or suppress it. I would have the country explode all rebels from its broad domain, and I would have it extend until there was no room for them outside of it on this continent. In a word, I would have a sort of spider policy, which would extend itself abroad, take everything in, and let nothing get out.

MR. J. M. THOMPSON OF THE GLEN HOUSE. We have heretofore announced the death of this well known landlord, who was washed away in a mill during the recent freshet and drowned. We are informed that his body was subsequently recovered some three miles below the mill, whereupon one of his men came to Pratt's woods and suddenly carried into eternity. The funeral took place at the Glen House on Friday. The remains were carried to Portland. Mr. Thompson was extensively by the travelling community as a landlord of many excellent traits, and his loss will be felt by those who have been accustomed year after year to receive his cordial welcome.

Somebody recently wrote to the Tribune for information as to the manufacture of counterfeit greenbacks. The reply he received is as follows:—

Mr. Andrew Johnson, one of the ex-President of the United States, and now candidate for the Senate, used to be pretty extensively engaged in the counterfeiting business, and much more likely to come at some things than people in the country generally, though we are PRISONS IN ITALY. Letters from Italy state that efforts are making in that country to establish a system of means by which money may be raised to buy off from military duty the students of the clergy who, until the passage of the new law, were exempt from such service. The Archbishop of Florence has published a circular recommending the formation of societies, the members of which shall pledge themselves to the payment annually of the sum of fourteen scudi—equivalent to so many cents of our money—to constitute a fund to be used for the object in view. He expresses a fear that the supply of priests will fall off still more unless what he considers an iniquitous and unjust system of legislation. As there are now about 60,000 ecclesiastics of all grades in Italy the fears of the Archbishop would seem to be rather visionary. The trouble with Italy is that she has too many, rather than too few, priests, and if two-thirds of them were to go to selling common shoes it would be very much better for the country.

What is a true Democrat? This interesting conundrum is answered by the New York Tribune in a recent issue. That journal says:

"In a true South an man has many political duties in a national house, he is a Democrat. The only men in the North with whose views the honestly comedic and democratic party, during the war, were called "Copperheads" and who, since the cessation of that war, have protested and voted against all the enactments of a succession of Congress. The true Democrat believes that the reconstruction acts ought to be overthrown at the point of the Federal bayonet, if necessary, and the negro should be deprived of the right of suffrage illegally and unfairly if he can. When we examine the principles we find in the Democratic party, and with it the fatal taint of rebel support, the government has to watch."

A severe thunder storm was experienced by the burning, on Saturday evening, of a large frame building on Main street, the property of Rochester University, in which the laboratory, work-shops and the private and magical cabinet and other effects of Professor Henry Ward, and his lectures and models, were destroyed by fire. Most, if not all, of the geological cabinet was saved entire and uninjured. The mineralogical cabinet was ruined. The value of the whole is estimated at about $60,000. There was an insurance of $20,000 and $5,000. The fire has destroyed the labors of years and articles that cannot be replaced.

THE Trustees of this Institution take pleasure in announcing that they have secured the services of the eminent and well known Dr. A. H. HAYES, late Surgeon in the U. S. Army, as Consulting Physician and Surgeon.

The Institution has been in successful operation for the past twenty years, during which time many thousands have been successfully treated for the various diseases of a delicate nature, requiring skill and experience.

Dr. HAYES is a graduate of Harvard University, and has had the benefit of the most extensive hospital practice in this country and Europe, having been for a number of years connected with the Massachusetts General Hospital, and also with the Lying-in Hospital of this city.

The Medical Staff are all graduates of regular medical colleges, and have had many years' experience in their respective specialties.

Dr. HAYES has published a work on Diseases of the Sexual System, which has reached its 164th edition, and is now being sold at the rate of 5,000 copies per month. It contains 300 pages, and is sold for the low price of $1. It is a standard work, and is highly recommended by the Medical Faculty. Every young man should have a copy. Sent by mail, free of postage, on receipt of price.

Dr. HAYES has also published a work on Consumption, which has reached its 30th edition, and is sold at the same price as the above. It is a valuable work, and should be read by every person who has a cough or any affection of the throat or lungs. Sent by mail, free of postage, on receipt of price.

Dr. HAYES has also published a work on Nervous Debility

Hon. John Covode, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, has received despatches from all but nine counties, and with estimates on those heard from, he says that Geary's majority will not be far from 4,000 either way.

Ohio Election

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 18

Sixty-eight Counties have been heard from. Hayes loss on last October headcount 6,000. The Legislature is very close.

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 18.

Full returns from Hamilton County show the vote for Hayes to be 19,446, Pendleton, 19,122, Pendleton's majority, 676. The entire ticket elects two Republican and two Democratic Senators, two Republican and two Democratic members of the House, and three Democratic County officers. The majority for the fusion and legislative ticket over the regular Republican ticket, is from 3,000 to 5,000.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 18.

John Covode has received a dispatch from Hon. John Sherman, dated Mansfield, Ohio, in which he says—

Fifty-six Counties of Ohio have been heard from, with a loss of 6,000 on last year. We have yet got a margin of 11,000, and I think Hayes is elected by 5,000 majority."

A dispatch from R. D. Harbison, Chairman of the Ohio State Central Committee says:

"Hayes is elected by from 8,000 to 10,000 majority. The Legislature is close, but I think Republican."

COLUMBUS, OHIO, Oct. 18.

The returns and opinions of both parties indicate that Hayes is elected by about 5,000. The House is Democratic and the Senate Republican.

The Democrats claim that the vote is so close that it will require the official count to determine who is elected Governor.

Iowa Election

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.

Dispatch from Des Monies, Iowa, reports that the returns come in slowly, but enough are received to show that the republican majority will be between 25,000 and 30,000. The Legislature will be almost entirely republican.

Coroner [illegible] Capt George Wentworth, [illegible] was arrested some days [illegible] and aggravated outrage upon the person of a young girl, a passenger [illegible] sail from Orrington to New York.

He, yesterday had a hearing before U. S. Commissioner Carr and was fully committed to answer to the U S District Court to be held in April next. Besides a general denial, his counsel, Mr H McCrillis, Esq., plead want of jurisdiction, the offence having been committed, if at all, while the vessel lay at Holmes' Hole, and was therefore not upon the "high seas" but in the jurisdiction of the State of Massachusetts. The penalty of the offence is death. The evidence is said to be very strong against the prisoner, and his previous reputation gives a strong color of truth to the present charge, he having been arrested before for a somewhat criminal crime, but by some means got clear of the law. The case creates a good deal of excitement in Orrington, where both of the parties reside, until where the girl—who is between thirteen and fourteen years of age, and very small for her years—is held in much esteem. Capt Wentworth is between 50 and 60 years old and has a family. Chas P Brown, Esq., appeared for the prosecution.

PERSONAL. We are sorry to learn that Mr George Gifford, who for several years has been connected with the Portland Daily Press—a portion of the time as acting editor in chief—has been obliged to give up labor, and now lies quite ill at Vassalboro of heart disease. We are in hopes that his disease has reached the climax and that his ultimate recovery may be looked for. Mr Gifford is an accomplished and thorough newspaper man, and we wish him a speedy restoration to health and to the duties of his profession, says the Portland Advertiser.

ANOTHER HEAVY RAIN. Yesterday morning another heavy rain storm set in which continued with great violence during the day, and at the present writing (8 p. m.) still continues raining heavily. An immense amount of water has fallen, which must cause a great freshet in addition to what we already have.

—Aroostook appears to be the only county in this State that did not suffer from the effects of the late gale.

—There will be an Agricultural Fair at Monson on the 20th of October.

—The S. J. Court for Aroostook county, Judge Kent presiding, adjourned finally on Saturday evening last after a session of two weeks.

—A Musical Convention was held last week in Patten village. The class numbered about fifty voices, and was under the direction of M. F. S Davenport. At the closing concert an excellent programme was rendered with the vocal assistance of Miss Jackman, Mrs Leslie, Miss Wiggin, Mr. Haynes and others.

—Benjamin Smith, of Jonesboro', one day recently, was driving a pair of young steers, which were tied with a line of rope. In some way Mr Smith became entangled in the loose part of the rope, was thrown and dragged, breaking the thigh bone of one of his legs, making a bad wound, says Machias Union.

—The Burlington (Vt.) Free Press of last Saturday says: "It is now six days since a Boston mail or any other mail from the East has been received in Burlington—an interruption in the mails entirely without precedent for length within our remembrance."

—The Lewiston Journal's Readfield correspondent, "Dirigo," writes: "The Trustees of the Maine Wesleyan Seminary have commenced work on their new building, intending to put in the foundation this fall and be ready to put up the walls as early next season as possible. The bricks and lumber are now being delivered on the grounds. This new enterprise is due in a measure to the munificence of S R Bearce, Esq., of Lewiston. It is finished according to the plans of F E Possell, architect, and will be one of the neatest and most convenient school edifices in the State—a noble monument to the energy and liberality of Mr Bearce."

—The Superior Court has now before it a question for decision—which it is said will be settled the present month—arising out of the settlement of the late suit of the Portland, Saco and Portsmouth Railroads, for the payment of back dividends in coin. The question is whether the present holders of stock, which they bought within the six years expired in the suit, or the owners of the stock at the time the disputed dividends should have been paid, should receive the back dividends.

—Rev James Kent Stone, D D, late President of Hobart College (Episcopal), at Geneva, has unqualifiedly declared his renunciation of the tenets of the Protestant Episcopal Church and his conversion to Catholicism. Dr Stone is a grandson of Chancellor Kent. He was formerly President of Kenyon college, in Ohio, and accepted the presidency of Hobart college something over a year ago. He resigned in June and went to Boston, where he now resides.

The Waterville Mail says—"We are willing the metropolitan press should misrepresent Waterville in anything but actual property. Our village may be dull, or pretty [illegible] willing, but we want every dollar that belongs to us. So when they say we have lost a hundred thousand dollars by the freshet, we have almost ninety thousand in good property by denying the report. Gen. Shiffer puts the actual loss at $2,500, all in lumber at places above Kendall's mills. His new mill here is not injured a dollar and the [illegible] two hundred will [illegible] in all. Kents about the mill. Fecunic Bridge may be set down [illegible] to a loss, ten to twelve thousand dollars, mostly owned here.

GARDINER CHRONICLE. The Dover Observer says: "We witnessed on Sunday and Monday by the severest rain storm that ever visited this county, the pouring in torrents nearly the whole time without cessation. On Tuesday morning the river was higher than ever before known by the oldest inhabitant. The boom of the mill above the dam in Foxcroft, owned by Messrs. R. D. Gilman, broke loose at about three o'clock in the day morning, and it was swept away. A boom of logs at Exeter, owned by Mr Kenniston, were [illegible] away about the same time. Mr Gilman's loss was about $5,000, that of Mr Kenniston's about $3,000. The loss of crops in the whole farm, both up river and down, must be very great—as large quantities of corn, beans, pumpkins, &c., were seen floating down stream at the time.

We are happy to learn, that the railroad bridges, which was about half completed, had, at last accounts, sustained it well with but slight damage.

The loss to the town of Ligonia will be severely felt both by the owners and contractors of lumber for the completion of the depot buildings—which must inevitably be delayed in consequence—some time.

WANTED—A good, faithful and industrious boy, in the country to office. Must be 15 years of age, who is fond of farming, uses no tobacco or liquor, and is desirous of being, when old enough, A Man. Such an one will find books and papers, a comfortable home, and companionship with the Editor of the Sunrise and other members of his home and office. None will otherwise apply who expects to get rich without work, acquire knowledge without study, or respectability without merit."

—A gentleman from Phillips informs the Bath Times that during the last fall, a coffin containing the remains of a man who had been lately buried in the town of that town, was washed out and carried by the water a distance of two miles or more and deposited on a piece of land that had belonged to the deceased when he was living. The story seems improbable, but the Times is assured that it is true.

MORE RAVAGES OF THE GREAT STORM. The St. John, N. B. papers contain account of the wreck of the barque Gem of 600 tons register, at New River, about 35 miles from St John. The Gem was built at St. Andrews, and launched some three weeks since, and was at New River, loading with deals for Liverpool. She was driven by the gale from her moorings and dashed upon a ledge of rocks and all hands on board, consisting of the captain, mate and nine men, perished.

—The Farmington Chronicle says that five of the seven head of cattle carried out in a barn from Phillips by the freshet, were found the next day grazing on an island several miles down the river!

—The Kennebec Journal says that Brevet Major J. M. Whitman is detached from the Arsenal at Watertown, Mass., and ordered to the command of the Kennebec Arsenal in this city. Brevet Lieut. Colonel D. H. Buel is detached from the Kennebec Arsenal and ordered to the command of Leavenworth Arsenal in Kansas.

PORTLAND AND ODDENSBURG RAILROAD. The Directors of this road have made a location of three more divisions, extending from the foot of Sebago Lake to Fryeburg, and advertise for proposals for the grading and masonry. The location is from the foot of the Lake to Steep Falls, thence to Hiram Bridge, and thence to Fryeburg.

—The Reporter says that Messrs. Lyon & Co., of Skowhegan, have been repairing their paper mill and making such additions as to increase their capacity of production nearly 25 per cent.

—The Maine Farmer says that Mr. S D Sturtevant of Starks—one of the best farmers in Somerset County, and a gentleman who has given much attention to the breeding of sheep—has recently returned from Canada with a flock of about two hundred choice sheep, of the Leicester and Cotswold breeds, with grades of the latter designed for the improvement of his own flock and others who wish to avail themselves of the opportunity given them through his efforts.

—The Portland Advertiser says we are sorry to hear that George Jewett, Esq., is lying ill at his residence on Pleasant street, in consequence of having been bitten by a dog last Friday. The attack of the animal caused several shock of the nervous system, from which he is now suffering.

—The Times says, "Thos Representative to the legislature, elect, from Van Buren, F. Cyr, Esq., is a graduate of the New Brunswick University, class of 1863. He is, we believe, a native of Grand Falls, N. B. At the present term of the S. J. Court, was admitted to the bar, to practice in all the Courts of the State."

—The Machias Union devotes several columns to the late gale, which was especially severe in that vicinity. Houses were blown down, barns destroyed, cattle and horses killed, trees uprooted, the telegraph poles prostrated, vessels damaged and lives severely injured. Between Calais and this city no messages passed for four days on account of damage to the lines. The high tide drove the inmates of the houses either to the highlands or to the upper stories—the wharves were submerged, lumber carried away, and general consternation prevailed.

—A correspondent of the Argus at Dexter says the ferry above that village was opened on Friday, and the roads are being put in condition. The new mill there was not carried out and the mill damaged per the $500. A new mill was carried off at Ripley Dexter, the bridge also, and the principal street badly gulled by the water. One man whose own escaped with little damage compared with some of his neighbors.

—The Bath Times has the following—

Marriage, the storm of the 4th inst., part of [illegible] and [illegible] of an unknown [illegible] ashore here on the Small Point Beach. The mast [illegible] broken off above deck leaving the lower ends held by rigging above water. The hull of the vessel lies in ten fathoms of water, [illegible] by north from the end of the Cape, distance about one mile, and west by north from Seguin. Two of the vessel's crew were found on the beach were buried on the 5th inst., by the authorities of Phippsburg. One of them had a pea jacket with a red and blue mark. On the left arm above the elbow was printed, "F. S. C. born 1856." From a pocket of the other was taken part of an envelope containing a lock of light brown hair, and addressed to "Sarah J. Tenten" (or something like it), "East Boston."

The vessel went undoubtedly [illegible] in the great gale of September last. Further information will be furnished by Tallman Lowell, Esq., Small Point, Maine.

—Mrs. S H. Kimball of Richland died suddenly a few days since of disease of the heart.

The Methodist Society at Dover are erecting a new block, the upper portion of which is to be occupied as a Masonic Hall.

—The Twenty-Seventh Annual Conference of Congregational Churches in Piscataquis County will be held at Foxcroft on Tuesday and Wednesday, October 19th and 20th.

—Hon. Charles Sumner will open the Lecture season in Portland with an Oration on Grant. It is under the patronage of the Grand Army of the Republic.

—The Summer Lewiston now makes but one trip each week, leaving Medina Tuesday morning and Portland Friday morning.

—Col. William Billings, of Damariscotta, suddenly [illegible] morning at the age of 78 years. He was a native of the town where he had always resided.

—The Congregational meeting house at Wilton, which was broken down by snow last winter, is being reconstructed and improved. The society have also had a bell weighing [illegible] and a fine bell weighing half a ton to put in the tower.

—The Bath Times says there is a lady in Augusta who's highest ambition seems to be enjoyed in taking care of a horse. She groom, the animal with her own hands, and bestows as much care upon it as a French lady would her poodle.

—Launched at Richmond, 7th inst., from the yard of James Hagar, a white oak ship, of 1600 tons, named JAMES BOWDOIN. This is the largest sailing vessel ever built on the Kennebec, with one exception,—that of a clipper ship which measured 2200 ton, but of no carrying capacity than the James Bowdoin.

—In Bath, a little child of Mr. O. F. Stinson, not quite two years old, was run over by a dray. Wednesday noon of last week, that it died the same night. Its mother had left it a few minutes before, sitting in a chair, when hearing a scream she returned and found it all in flames, having in some way fallen on the stove.

—Three of the Trustees and two of the Overseers of Bowdoin College, have died within a few weeks. They are Senator Fessenden, Judge Tenney and Hons. Phillip Eastman, George Downe and Geo F. Patten.

—The late freshet was a severe test of the strength of the dam and bulkheads of the Phoenix Water Power Company; but they stood the pressure nobly, showing that the Company has built well thus far. $35,000 will cover the entire loss at Kendall's Mill.

—The Band will play at the corner of Kenduskeag Avenue and Division street this evening, if the weather is favorable.

—The Patten Voice states that potatoes in that county are being seriously damaged by rot. The crop will be light.

—Six fine salmon were caught in the Aroostook river one day last week. Where is the fish warden?

YOUNG MAN DROWNED. In the town of Hiram, Oxford County, Maine, during the freshet of Monday, the 4th inst., a young man named Manville Durgin, aged 25 years and unmarried, lost his life. He was upon the intervale trying to secure his corn. His neighbors warned him of his danger, but he delayed until escape was impossible. The rush of water came upon him and he was drowned in sight of several neighbors, who were powerless to aid him. His body was found on Thursday about twenty rods from where he was last seen. It is supposed that he seized upon some bushes, which prevented his body being borne off by the current.

the whole capital stock being represented by 870 shares. The property of the company consists of a Steam Saw Mill, capable of manufacturing five million feet of long lumber, with a proportionate amount of clapboards, shingles, and laths. About fifteen acres of land is the site of Lewiston, well located for building purposes, and thirty thousand acres of timber land, well located on the Androscoggin river, and its branches, from which but a small quantity of the timber has been cut.

Miscellany.

SARAH'S HONEY BEES.

[Concluded.]

"Why, Phene Bonnet, I thought to myself, have you made a mistake already? It can't be the man's daughter invited because I am going spring." In fact I dont another idea struck me, and I looked around for Sarah, but she was not the making bods. She came to the window when Belle was ready to mount, Mr. Brooks scarcely noticed her, but assisted her with the greatest care, paid her many compliments on the way she held the reins in her tiny, gauntleted hands, and then away they rode, Belle's merry laugh floating back on the air.

I went to my room and tried to read a little, but the scent of the new mown hay stole through the window, and the bluebird and robin were singing, so that I was soon glad to throw my book for it was better to be out there and receive rest into my soul. I heard the bees humming and buzzing among the flowers, and I wondered if they was watching them.

I believed I will go and study into the nature of crayfish," I said suddenly, and on the impulse I went.

"You'll find her round by the back door; under the apple trees," said Aunt Em when I inquired after them.

So I went out expecting to fairly see it now, that fine old tree with its row of fruit trees and the little [illegible] in the corner. Under the trees were the hives, ten in a row with the bees coming and going full of business and excitement. And near by sat Sarah with her sewing in hand, in her quiet contented way, keeping a watchful part of the sunny [illegible] the bees humming the sweet air.

To begin with, I thought to myself, 'you remind me of Jezebel and his sheep, when he described the quiet and lowly who inherited the earth.' You are inheriting this morning. So it seems good."

An end of this bench [illegible] save to offer you, Miss Bonnet. [illegible] Sarah; but won't you sit down?"

"Don't call me Miss Bonnet. I'm Phene, I corrected. "Yes, I'll sit a minute; but I want to look at the bees first."

For I delight in old-fashioned gardens, and this was just after my heart. The beds and old fashioned borders, that double kind that [illegible] too fragrant to live. Gilyflowers [illegible] and sweet, purple lilies [illegible] pinkeyed Rosea, quarantine and [illegible] marigolds and peonies, sweet-[illegible] larkspurs there were in plenty, and [illegible] mignonette. Early astors were [illegible] om, and the chrysanthemums were [illegible] eginning to bud. Then there was [illegible] bed, all sweet and bitter herbs, as [illegible] omed so good. Lavender and sp[illegible] and a dozen stalks of sp[illegible]. I like people who keep such [illegible] as that right along from year to year [illegible] seem to mean so much more to [illegible] my city gardens with fired gardens.

I pulled a sprig of [illegible] and went back to Sarah.

"What makes you have to [illegible] the bees all the time?" I asked.

"They are just ready to [illegible]," she said in a tone that showed [illegible] and we have to watch where they go, or we may lose them. They [illegible] to the woods or to some other [illegible].

"Pretty little brown things, aren't they?" I said, after observing them a moment.

"Yes indeed, brown and [illegible] with bronze. And such busy little creatures, I almost feel [illegible] ow them apart, and I have named [illegible] of them. There's Dot now [illegible] she may be poised itself and instantly [illegible] and then flew off to the clover.

"Why, how splendid! I [illegible] ow you could make pets of them," I exclaimed. "And here you sit these [illegible] es, getting the very heart of the summer into your heart, while Belle [illegible] from place to place, and get [illegible], and don't know what we are [illegible].

"Oh, no," she said, smiling [illegible] think how much you can get [illegible] place you go to. I went on a jou[illegible] to the mountains, and I remember [illegible] height, every tree and about [illegible] we went by, and the people [illegible] such different characters. I [illegible] same home, with so much [illegible] away in my life to think of."

"You are a regular bee-[illegible]," I said, as I watched [illegible] winged things flying home with [illegible] they had gathered [illegible] away.

"My flights are almost [illegible] then," she said; and her contented [illegible] ck me more forcibly than ever. [illegible] was good to the merest flowers. But [illegible] honey wherever we go like [illegible].

And this was one of Belle's [illegible] people, I thought, with no sparkle, [illegible] on her character to take hold of. [illegible] as good reading as one of Au[illegible] romances.

"My headache is all gone [illegible]. It is a great deal nicer to be sitting [illegible] by the bee-hives than riding under [illegible] sun with Belle and Mr. Brooks. [illegible] gentlemen very well; do [illegible] think love makes three quarters [illegible] trouble to it."

"Why no, I think love [illegible] most beautiful thing in life," she [illegible] gently; but at the same time the [illegible] her color deepened, and she looked slightly [illegible].

One of Belle's old [illegible] Sarah, and she sits here [illegible] the most beautiful thing in life.

While we were talking the [illegible] buzz of the bees increased [illegible], and there seemed to be a perfect cloud [illegible] from one of the hives, and [illegible] over us. Some of them flew so [illegible] almost brushed my cheek, as [illegible].

"They're swarming, Sarah," said [illegible] excited voice. "Don't move [illegible] not frightened; they won't hurt [illegible]. Oh, I hope they will settle in [illegible] somewhere. Last summer [illegible] swarm went a mile off."

There was a clatter of horses' [illegible] down the road.

There are Belle and Mr. [illegible] exclaimed.

Sarah had risen and stood [illegible] hand resting on a low limb [illegible] while she looked first at the [illegible] Belle in her pretty blue [illegible] to the ground.

Belle saw us, and came [illegible] round the house with her little whi[illegible] and while Mr. Brooks fastened th[illegible]

"Oh, we had such a splendi[illegible]," she exclaimed. "But mercy, how [illegible] bees have come away! you [illegible] Oh no, Belle; they won't [illegible] if you keep still," said Sarah.

Pleased with the effect [illegible] you never saw, with the laurels and [illegible] in bloom.

"Bees swarming, eh?" asked [illegible] ing us; "I'll have them [illegible] quite soon, Sarah."

"Oh, thank you," she said [illegible] going to blow the horn for [illegible] dowd in the meadow lot. [illegible] Hugh, you had better ask [illegible] way for the gloves."

The flying and buzzing, [illegible] undoubtedly, I was alarmed [illegible] to darken the very air before [illegible]

"Go away, you wretches," [illegible] striking with her whip. "Oh, [illegible] sting! oh, they are killing me! [illegible] Sarah, Sarah," screamed A[illegible]

"Hush, hush!" I whispered vehemently "you mustn't go. He has just proposed to her, and she has accepted. Don't you see?"

Belle stared at me.

"What! Cousin Sarah?" she uttered in bewilderment. "Mr. Brooks and Sarah?"

I nodded, and there was silence for a few moments.

"What a little goose I have been!" exclaimed Belle at last, with a merry laugh. "Very well Phene Bonnet, just as soon as over I will bask in the sky I can [illegible] to accept Archie Russell, and love him dearly?"

Which she did, and is happy. But of all the engaged girls I know I like best to think about Sarah. She is such a real little honey-bee, gathering sweetness out of everything.
